LAUNCH OF NEW BLUE CHIP SYSTEM FOR SMEs

The very best in IT systems is now within reach of small to medium sized businesses - and at an affordable price. Launched today, Standard Platform is an enterprise-class computing platform designed specifically for SMEs.

Standard Platform is a product of UK-based IT consultancy Korscient.

"We saw an opportunity to provide an enterprise solution at a fraction of the current cost", said Ivan Jones, a senior consultant at Korscient, who spent four years developing a similar system at Credit Suisse.

Standard Platform provides a completely standardised infrastructure framework built with Microsoft and other third party software. It enables customers to exploit the many facilities in Microsoft Windows which are generally unavailable to smaller businesses.

The system's installation and maintenance is provided at a fixed cost enabling businesses to minimise unpredictable IT expenditure. Korscient will provide Standard Platform customers with support services and system housekeeping as part of the maintenance contract.

"Using the Remote Assistance features in Windows we can help users with problems in real-time. We are also able to manage our customers' infrastructure remotely using Terminal Services to provide proactive maintenance", adds Luke Roberts, principal architect.

Standard Platform was developed by Korscient's engineering team drawing on their experience with global enterprise computing platforms for the investment banking industry.
